Hi James

The client has had difficulty sourcing adequate quantities of matching reclaimed corbelling brickwork and therefore has decided to adopt a traditional detail as attached using clay tiles and engineering brick headers.

Could you please let me know if this acceptable.

Kind Regards

Nigel

I am trying to close the discharge of condition file on this site following the receipt of the timber cladding sample but I note that the matter of the parapet detailing and the necessary samples have not be received. Can you provide me with an update on the matter. I recall a discussion about the client struggling to finding a suitable parapet product?
