Good Afternoon

I have received the following response from Simon Smith our EHO on the further land contamination:

If testing confirms that it is asbestos then a remediation plan will be required and approved prior to implementation. However, they will also need to excavate around this potential hotspot to ensure there is no further contamination.

As stated, until this work is done they should not be working in this area and if further contamination is found as the development moves around site, then this process needs to be repeated.

Their contaminated land consultant should also be involved in this process if not already.

You will need to submit the proposed remediation to the LPA for approval under the relevant condition
