Regulations 1996. Further information can be obtained from the Health and Safety Executive and the Environment Agency.

There must be no burning of any materials on this site.

BUILDING ACT 1984, Section 82(2), (4) and (5) and Section 83(1), (2) and (3)

82.-(2) No one shall be required under paragraph (c), (e) or (f) of subsection (1) above carry out any work in land outside the premises on which the works of demolition are being carried out if he has no right to carry out that work, but, subject to section 101 below, the person undertaking the demolition, or the local authority acting in his default, may break open any street for the purpose of complying with any such requirement.

(4) This section does not authorise interference with apparatus or works of statutory undertakers authorised by any enactment to carry on an undertaking for the supply of electricity, gas or water.

(5) Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (4) above, this section does not exempt a person from –

(a) the obligation to obtain any consent required under section 67 of schedule 3 to the Water Act 1945 (which relates to interference with valves and other apparatus) or section 68 of that schedule (which relates to alterations to supply pipes and other apparatus)

(b) criminal liability under any enactment relating to the supply of gas or electricity, or

(c) the requirements of the regulations under section 31 of the Gas Act 1972 (public safety).

83.-(1) Section 102 below applies in relation to a notice given under section 81 above.

(2) Among the grounds on which an appeal may be brought under section 102 below against such notice are –

(b) in the case of a notice requiring any surfaces of an adjacent building be weatherproofed, that the owner of the adjacent building ought to pay, or contribute towards, the expenses of weatherproofing those surfaces.

(3) Where the grounds on which an appeal under section 102 below is brought include a ground specified in subsection (2) above –

BUILDING ACT 1984, Section 102

Appeal against notice requiring works.

102.-(1) Where a person is given a notice in relation to which it is declared by any provision of this Act that this section applies, he may appeal to a Magistrates' Court on any of the following grounds that are appropriate in the circumstances of the particular case –

(a) that the notice or requirement is not justified by the terms of the provision under which it purports to have been given,
(b) that there has been some informality, defect of error in, or in connection with, the notice ,
(c) that the authority have refused unreasonably to approve the execution of alternative works, or that the works required by the notice to be executed are otherwise unreasonable in character or extent, or are unnecessary,
(d) that the time within which the works are to be executed is not reasonably sufficient for the purpose,
(e) that the notice might lawfully have been served on the occupier of the premises in question instead of on the owner, or on the owner instead of on the occupier, and that it would have been equitable for it to have been so served,
(f) where the works are works for the common benefit of the premises in question and other premises, that some other person, being the owner or occupier of premises to be benefited, ought to contribute towards the expenses of executing any works required.

(2) If and in so far as an appeal under this section is based on the grounds of some informality, defect of error in or in connection with the notice, the court shall dismiss the appeal, if it is satisfied that the informality, defect or error was not a material one.

(3) The appellant –

(a) shall, where the grounds upon which the appeal is brought include a ground specified in subsection (1) (e) or (f) above, serve a copy of his notice of appeal on each person referred to, and
(b) may, in the case of any appeal under this section, serve a copy of his notice of appeal on any other person having an estate or interest in the premises in question, and on the hearing of the appeal the court may make such order as it thinks fit with respect to –
    (i) the person by whom any works are to be executed and the contribution to be made by any other person towards the cost of the works, or
    (ii) the proportions in which any expenses that may become recoverable by the local authority are to be borne by the appellant and such other person.

(4) In exercising its powers under subsection (3) above, the court shall have regard -

(a) as between an owner and an occupier to the terms and conditions, whether contractual or statutory of the tenancy and to the nature of the works required, and
(b) in any case, to the degree of benefit to be derived by the different persons concerned.

(5) This section has effect subject to any modification specified in the provision under which the notice is given.

BUILDING ACT 1984, Section 102

Appeal against notice requiring works.

102.-(1) Where a person is given a notice in relation to which it is declared by any provision of this Act that this section applies, he may appeal to a Magistrates' Court on any of the following grounds that are appropriate in the circumstances of the particular case –

(a) that the notice or requirement is not justified by the terms of the provision under which it purports to have been given,
(b) that there has been some informality, defect of error in, or in connection with, the notice ,
(c) that the authority have refused unreasonably to approve the execution of alternative works, or that the works required by the notice to be executed are otherwise unreasonable in character or extent, or are unnecessary,
(d) that the time within which the works are to be executed is not reasonably sufficient for the purpose,
(e) that the notice might lawfully have been served on the occupier of the premises in question instead of on the owner, or on the owner instead of on the occupier, and that it would have been equitable for it to have been so served,
(f) where the works are works for the common benefit of the premises in question and other premises, that some other person, being the owner or occupier of premises to be benefited, ought to contribute towards the expenses of executing any works required.

(2) If and in so far as an appeal under this section is based on the grounds of some informality, defect of error in or in connection with the notice, the court shall dismiss the appeal, if it is satisfied that the informality, defect or error was not a material one.

(3) The appellant –

(a) shall, where the grounds upon which the appeal is brought include a ground specified in subsection (1) (e) or (f) above, serve a copy of his notice of appeal on each person referred to, and
(b) may, in the case of any appeal under this section, serve a copy of his notice of appeal on any other person having an estate or interest in the premises in question, and on the hearing of the appeal the court may make such order as it thinks fit with respect to –
    (i) the person by whom any works are to be executed and the contribution to be made by any other person towards the cost of the works, or
    (ii) the proportions in which any expenses that may become recoverable by the local authority are to be borne by the appellant and such other person.

(4) In exercising its powers under subsection (3) above, the court shall have regard -

(a) as between an owner and an occupier to the terms and conditions, whether contractual or statutory of the tenancy and to the nature of the works required, and
(b) in any case, to the degree of benefit to be derived by the different persons concerned.

(5) This section has effect subject to any modification specified in the provision under which the notice is given.
